About Results-Based Accountability

THRIVE staff and volunteers are using Results-Based Accountability (RBA) Concepts to improve Community Funding investment outcomes.

For more detailed information about Results-Based Accountability, go to www.raguide.org or www.resultsaccountability.com. Results-Based Accountability concepts and materials were developed by Mark Friedman, author of Trying Hard is Not Good Enough (Trafford 2005) and founder and director of the Santa Fe-based Fiscal Policy Studies Institute.

What is RBA?

RBA is a disciplined way of thinking and taking action used by communities to improve the lives of children, families, and the community as a whole. RBA is also used by agencies to improve the performance of their programs.

How does RBA work?

RBA starts with ends and works backward, step by step, towards means. For communities, the ends are conditions of well-being for children, families and the community as a whole. For programs, the ends are how customers are better off when the program works the way it should.

Results-Based Accountability:

- gets from talk to action quickly;
- is a simple, common sense process that everyone can understand;
- helps groups to surface and challenge assumptions that can be barriers to innovation;
- builds collaboration and consensus; and
- uses data and transparency to ensure accountability for both the well-being of children, families, and communities, and for the performance of programs.

The following definitions apply:

Results Accountability has two components:

- 1) Population Accountability - a group of partners takes on responsibility for the well-being of a population in a geographic area
- 2) Performance Accountability - a manager or group of managers takes responsibility for the performance of a program, agency or service system

Result – a population condition of well-being for children, adults, families and communities, stated in plain language

Indicator – a measure that helps quantify the achievement of a result

Baseline – what the measures show about where we have been and where we are headed

Turning the Curve – what success looks like if we do better than the baseline

Strategy – a coherent collection of actions that has a reasoned chance of improving results

Performance Measure – a universal measure of how well a program, agency or service system is working. The most important performance measures tell us whether program customers are better off. There are several types of performance measures:

- Measures that answer the question “How much did we do?”
- Measures that answer the question “How well did we do it?”
- Measures that answer the question “Is anyone better off (#)?”
- Measures that answer the question “Is anyone better off (%)?”

There are different categories of being better off: Skills/Knowledge, Attitude/Opinion, Behavior, and Circumstance

Targets – the articulation of target levels of performance expressed in measurable terms and specified time frames, against which actual achievement is compared
